Description

Neem oil is from the Indian neem tree and it's an entirely natural plant insecticide to guard against insects (caterpillars, cochineals, beetle larvae, red spiders). It's biological, kind to the environment and doesn't harm users, plus it really works! You can even spray it in kitchen cupboards near food or in your wardrobe to eradicate moth larvae.

If you want to avoid using harmful pesticides and chemicals on your garden then use neem oil instead.

For use on these species: conifers, deciduous, flowering and fruit trees.

How to use: water-soluble. Dilute 2-3ml in 1 litre of water and water your trees. To prevent insect attack use once per month from May to September on outside bonsai. For indoor bonsai you can use neem oil all year round. Can be used as frequently as every other week.
For mini bonsai and vivacious plants use 1-2.5ml of neem oil per 1 litre of water.
